HONOLULU EGG LAYERS DO THEMSELVES PROUD

Three hundred birds, representing the hen aristocracy of Honolulu and the upper tier in pigeonhood, are crowding, clucking or cooing at the poultry show, now in full feather in the new National Guard rifle gallery, on Miller street. The exhibition is a good one, probably the best so far held in the islands, both in the number of fine birds in the coops and the quality shown in the different classes. In addition to the fine display of poultry, there are some excellent government exhibitions, one from the Federal Experiment Station, another from the Board of Agriculture and Forestry, while some good commercial exhibits help out in making the exhibition one decidedly worth visiting.

Probably the variety of hen best represented in the show is the white Plymouth Rock, although the Orpingtons, Leghorns, Wyandottes and Rhode Island include a number of fine birds. The Rhode Island whites, exhibited by J. Johnson and Jason Andrade, attracted a good share of attention, being birds new in Honolulu. C. M. Cooke Jr. took a lion's share of the barred rock ribbons, while L. C. Ables, Dr. C. B. High, John Cullen, Frank Santos, R. C. Brown, Mrs. S. I. Shaw and J. J. Greene figure prominently in the list of winning exhibitors.

In addition to the domestic brands of cluckers, the exhibition contains a number of birds of the unusual types. A couple of the coops hold Frisoles, fowls that have had their feathers stuck in backwards; next to these is a Silky, a proud looking little white cock with long hair—or what looks like hair. There are several magnificent black Minorca cocks, running to white gills and red combs and stepping high in their limited quarters, while with them are the demure hens of the harem, their combs pulled veil-like and modestly over their faces. The white crested black Polish egg-layers sport Paderewski top-knots, looking like sports in contrast to the domesticated Orpingtons in the adjoining sections.

The pigeon display attracts a great deal of attention and is generally first-class in respect to the quality of the entries, there being a score of breeds, from the sleek carriers to the burly Jacobins and the swollen pouters.

Agricultural Exhibits.

In the exhibit prepared by the Federal Experiment Station are a large number of interesting things. The central display is made up of cotton, tobacco and rubber, the first giving an excellent idea of the quality of the product that can be grown here. Three kinds are shown—sea island, Chinese upland and carabonica—the first being decidedly the superior of the other two. A sample of this cotton was recently forwarded to the cotton experts at Washington, who pronounce it the finest ever sent to them for examination. With the cotton is shown a miniature gin.

Bales of rice hay and rice straw are shown and it is the hope of Dr. Wilcox to be able to call the attention of the cavalry forage-buyers to these. The hay is stated to be equal to the best wheat hay, while the straw is of good quality. If a market can be found for this latter it will be a big help to the rice planters, who now burn it up to get rid of it around their fields.

The honey industry is well represented, a hive of busy bees being part of the exhibit, beside the hive being Buff Wyandotte Cockerel—B. F. Beardmore, 1 and 2.

Buff Wyandotte Pullet—B. F. Beardmore.

Buff Wyandotte Hen—B. F. Beardmore.

Partridge Wyandotte Pen—J. J. Greene.

A house built of wax, the idea of E. C. Smith and B. T. Fullaway, of the station.

The Bureau of Agriculture and Forestry is represented by a display from each of the departments. That of the entomological department is being studied over carefully by visitors, who appear to have a desire to become acquainted with both the friendly and harmful insects of Hawaii. As a rule, judging from the pinned-up specimens, the most useful the bug the homelier he is.

The forestry department shows a number of forest reserve maps and a number of growing plants from their nursery. The animal industry department has a collection of pathological specimens, quite as bad as they look.

The Pacific Guano Fertilizer company has a group of marine birds and an exhibition of the various brands of growth promoters bagged in Kalihī.

Judge G. B. Andrews Pleased.

George R. Andrews, of Fresno, who is here to judge the exhibited birds, has expressed his pleasure at finding the show so well housed and with so many good birds. He went over the coops yesterday and ticketed the winners, his work being done thoroughly in spite of the limited time allowed him.

Features of the Program.

The exhibition will be open every morning and afternoon and every evening until nine o'clock for the rest of the week.

This evening, at half past seven o'clock, Professor B. E. Porter, of the College of Hawaii, will deliver a lecture on "Selection of Poultry," demonstrating his points with live specimens, and will also give some practical points for success in the handling of poultry, illustrating his talk with lantern slides. On Friday, at the same hour, he will give another practical talk on poultry keeping in Hawaii, illustrating this also with lantern slides.

BARNEY JOY FOR BOSTON

Barney Joy, the one-time idol of every baseball fan in Hawaii, and still regarded as one of the best all-round players in the Territory, will probably go East with the Boston Nationals next season. He is now under contract to them, and is making his preparations to leave for the training grounds next season.

Barney will not turn out for the local league season, as it means as much as his job is worth to him to work at four o'clock every afternoon and take a hike to the ball grounds. The big husky southpaw was given a month's rest by the Honolulu Iron Works, where he is employed, last season, and he does not feel that he can afford this kind of a lay-off again so soon.

It is a good thing for Joy to take a short rest from the game at present, if he intends butting into big league company once more. He cannot improve himself much in his practice here, for there are few of the locals who can show streaks of brilliancy at the game equal to Barney, and it is only by the example of faster company that the big fellow will make himself better.

He was pretty severely knocked during his session in the Coast league, but it must be said for Joy that this was due to the fact that he got in wrong at the outset. He was not very popular with his team-mates, for one thing, and that militated against his showing the best form in playing. A ball-player, and especially a pitcher, certainly cannot be expected to show the best that is in him when he feels that the other eight men in the team are not backing him.

Joy has steam to waste, a good, easy delivery, and is a fence-baiter, the latter being unusual for a pitcher. He demonstrated his class in the local league last season, when he slammed the ball over the fence for a homer at least once almost every game. He was good for a two-bagger most any old time, and wasn't particular about bunting out a triple. But here again Joy did not have the goodwill of everyone back of him.

If he breaks into the big league company again, with nothing to lose and everything to gain, Joy ought to make a showing. All he wants to cultivate is a cool head, and learn not to mind the jibes from the bleachers.

TO ABOLISH LAND COURT

Judge P. L. Weaver created considerable surprise by his recommendation in his report to the Chief Justice that the office of the Judge of the Land Court be abolished and the work turned over to one of the Circuit Judges. The position carries with it a good salary, but there is very little work attached. Weaver states that the Land Court, if his recommendation is followed, could be run with practically no expense to the government. Judge Weaver says as follows:

"The experience elsewhere is that better and quicker results are had from a separate court which we have adopted here. So far as I have been able to learn, whenever the ordinary courts have had this work added to their duties, it has been because of the constitutional limitations on the power to create new courts.

"By giving the duties of the Judge of the Court of Land Registration to one of the three judges of the Circuit Court of the First Circuit, and making the clerk of his court the Registrar of the Land Court, salaries of a special judge and clerk will be cut out. Judging from past experience, by cutting out these salaries and reducing slightly the fee allowed to examiners of titles, the court can be run at no expense to the government. The costs deposited and turned into the Treasury will balance the amount drawn. The policy of paying out a salary for part of his time to a judge of a separate court is not apt to induce experienced attorneys to accept the position. The present judge of the court has felt the duty to maintain the Land Registration Act until it had proved its usefulness and practicability. It has now done so and the future will only add to the present experience.

"Therefore I recommend that the Act be so amended as to transfer the duties of the Judge of the Court of Land Registration to a Judge of the Circuit Court, with the confidence that the public have learned to benefit by the Act and that the procedure is established and known.

"The court has been used here as a modern improvement over the ancient machinery of trying title to land, for over five years, whereas California is just awakening to its use. New York will be able to use this modern process in February of this year.

"If this amendment becomes law, I can give up my office with the feeling that Hawaii has learned to use modern methods in matters of title to land and will continue to use them more and more as the transactions in real estate increase."
